We usually go on beach holidays, but I think they are boring. My wife likes to relax on a beach, but I don't. We decided to go to Botswana in Africa this year for a change. We took a plane from London to Gaborone and it took around fourteen hours. We had to stop twice on the way, once in Frankfurt and then in Johannesburg.

We stayed in a hotel for the first night. After that we camped in the Chobe National Park for three nights. It was an all-inclusive trip and the price included the tent, as much food as you could eat and all the trips. We saw so many animals like elephants, lions and giraffes, and we took a lot of photographs of them. We then went to the Okavango Delta for the last three nights. There are many rivers in this area and it's famous for its animals. We travelled along the river each day in a dugout canoe* which was so relaxing, but we didn't see many animals. I don't know why!

The delta is about 15,000 square kilometres in size. It's very unusual because the rivers don't flow into the sea or ocean.
