PART B

Test items	Guidance for teachers
1, 2, 3	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 1A. Focus on helping students to develop confidence in using a range of tenses in narratives. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 1A carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 104.
4, 5, 6	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 1B. Focus on developing awareness of the way in which infinitive or -ing forms after certain verbs can change the meaning. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 1B carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 105.
7, 8, 9	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 1D. Encourage students to use these expressions in ways they may be less familiar or confident with, such as (not) even for emphasis. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 1D carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 107.
10, 11, 12	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 2A. Although simple and continuous perfect forms can often be used interchangeably, encourage students to think about when they cannot (e.g. for state verbs). If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 2A carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 108.
13, 14, 15	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 2B. In this case, encourage students to focus on practising the more advanced areas such as the omission of relative pronouns and/or the use of infinitive and -ing in relative clauses. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 2B carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 109.
16, 17, 18	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 3A. However, although they may recognise the structures, they may not be confident with using them, so encourage them to use the grammar productively. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 3A carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 111.

19, 20, 21	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 3B. Encourage them to focus on structures and phrases they do not already know, and practise using these. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 3B carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 112.
22, 23, 24	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 3D. Encourage students to practise expressing stronger preferences with much/far as well as negative preferences which they may find more challenging. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 3D carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 114.
25, 26, 27	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 4A. Focus on the structures and phrases they do not already know and encourage them to practise using them. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 4A carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 115.
28, 29, 30	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 4B. Focus on helping students develop confidence with indirect questions. They may also need to practise negative questions, paying particular attention to correct intonation. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 4B carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 116.
31, 32, 33	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 5A. Focus on the structures they are less confident with, such as the negative clauses of purpose, and encourage them to practise using them. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 5A carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 118.
34, 35, 36	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 5B. Focus on the structures and phrases they do not already know and encourage them to practise using them. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 5B carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 119.

37, 38, 39	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 5D. Focus on encouraging students to practise using the structures productively. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 5D carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 121.
40, 41, 42	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 6A. Focus on encouraging students to use the full range of phrases and structures productively. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 6A carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 122.
43, 44, 45	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 6B. Encourage students to practise using the structures that they find more challenging and to pay particular attention to the verb form (infinitive or -ing) used after the target structure. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 6B carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 123.
46, 47, 48	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 7A. Encourage students to practise using a range of tenses and focus on the different time phrases, place references and reported questions. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 7A carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 125.
49, 50, 51	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 7B. Although students may be familiar with the passive voice, encourage them to practise using it with a range of tenses. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 7B carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 126.
52, 53, 54	If learners give correct answers to these three test items, be aware that they may be familiar with the grammar in Lesson 7D. Encourage students to use the different ways of avoiding repetition productively. If learners give incorrect answers to these three test items, be aware that you may need to present the grammar in Lesson 7D carefully and use the related Grammar Bank material on page 128.
