Unusual friendships

Three readers tell us about unusual friendships and why they are special.

Marissa (62)
People are forever making comments when they see me with Tonio. He's far younger than me so they think he's my son. We got to know each other at the gym. I remember struggling to use an exercise machine on my first day there. He could see I was stressed out so he came over and told me to stop worrying. He said I should take my time and he showed me how to use it properly. Since then, I've been meeting him there twice a week. He's been helping me stick to an exercise routine and, thanks to him, I'm making good progress. Tonio's so patient and he encourages me to keep going. He knows how to cheer me up if I'm in a bad mood. If he hadn't helped me, I definitely would have given up exercise by now.

Sean (25)
I never thought I'd become friends with Miles. He's one of the managers in my office and I thought he was a bit strange because he was always talking to himself. Anyway, we had a staff training day and I was put in Miles' team. I thought it would be a nightmare, but I found out we had a lot in common. We actually went to the same school, although we weren't in the same year because he's a bit older than me. He also told me about his lifelong passion for history and suggested visiting some historic buildings with him. I'd always been into history so the next week he took me to a local castle. Since then, we've been to quite a few historic sites and he's really deepened my interest in the subject. I wouldn't know half as much about local history if I hadn't become friends with him.

Adithi (32)
One day last year, I was in a rush for work and there were a lot of people waiting to get train tickets. Stephanie noticed me and she let me jump the queue so I wouldn't miss the train. Later on, I saw her on the train and we ended up talking. It turned out that we both like travelling. By the end of the conversation, we'd agreed to go travelling together. I wouldn't normally arrange something like that. However, we're a similar age so it seemed to make sense. That summer we travelled around Europe and we had an amazing time. I'm a bit shy and she's very direct. I didn't mind, though, because she was always happy to ask for directions or book accommodation. She also found the areas with the best nightlife so we had a lot of fun. I'm really looking forward to travelling with her again.
