Our favourite childhood possessions

Readers tell us about the things they loved most when they were children.

Kai

According to an article in the paper, the most popular toys nowadays are video consoles and dolls. However, they aren't the things that give my kids most pleasure. Instead, they're more likely to care about an old shoe box or plastic lids from milk cartons. For them, those materials can be used for making pretend money, dolls' houses, or anything else they can imagine. I remember being exactly the same when I was growing up, and one of my favourite possessions was an old briefcase, which my dad had given me.

I recently read a magazine article which said that briefcases are not very common anymore. So, if you don't know what a briefcase is, it's a small rectangular case for carrying documents. To be honest, I don't think my dad ever used his briefcase for that. In fact, I don't think he carried anything in it except for his lunch. However, I'd always dreamt about having my own briefcase so I was excited when he gave it to me. It was made of leather, and it was a bit old and damaged. I used to imagine that I was a secret agent, like James Bond, and the briefcase contained all my secret agent's devices. The fact I could lock it up made it even more special to me. Of course, I threw it out years ago, but I'll never forget that briefcase!

Kimberly

Like most of my friends, I had all the typical girls' toys – dolls, a pretend kitchen, and a make-up set – but they weren't for me. I used to play with them for a few days before losing interest. Then, one day, on a trip to my grandmother's house, I was given a box of old toy cars. She'd found them when she was tidying up one of her bedrooms. She hadn't planned to give them to me because she thought they were for boys. However, she didn't have anything else for me to play with so she ended up getting them out.

Apparently, they'd belonged to my father when he was growing up, and there were all sorts of vehicles in that box. Although they were probably 30 years old, most of them were in good condition. A lot of toys are plastic nowadays, but those ones were metal. I think that's why they'd lasted so long. Even the damaged ones didn't bother me, and they also gave me a lot of pleasure. I spent hours inventing stories with them, usually ending with crazy car chases. I've still got that box under my bed and I'm looking forward to giving it to my son. He's too young at the moment, but I know he'll enjoy them as much as I did.

5 Read the article again. Choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

1 What does Kai have in common with his children?
A His toys didn't give him pleasure.
B His favourite toy was a video console.
C He liked to create his own games.
D His children have a briefcase.

2 What does Kai say about the briefcase?
A His father had carried documents in it.
B His father only used to carry his lunch in it.
C He thinks that it was in perfect condition.
D He has forgotten where it is now.

3 How did Kimberly feel about most of her toys?
A She didn't appreciate the typical girls' toys.
B She spent a lot of time playing with dolls.
C She didn't have the same toys as her friends.
D She was more interested in using make-up.

4 Why did Kimberley's grandmother give her a box of toy cars?
A She wanted her to play with more 'boys' toys'.
B She wanted to tidy up the room they were in.
C She had no other toys for Kimberly to play with.
D She had hoped to give her them for a long time.

5 What does Kimberly say about the toy cars in the last paragraph?
A She was upset that some of them were damaged.
B She and her father played with them together.
C She has already given them to her young son.
D She is excited about sharing them with her son.

How to become more confident

By Phillip Drew

[1]I've been giving workshops and presentations about how to become more confident for the last five years. I always start by telling people, 'I used to be the least confident person in the world,' which surprises them because that's not how I appear. However, the truth is that I used to struggle with social situations because I always imagined that something bad was going to happen. I'm going to tell you how I succeeded in becoming more confident and how you can, too.

[2]Firstly, when I was growing up, I was always comparing myself to other people. I worried about my appearance because I thought the other kids had nicer clothes than me. I tried to copy what they were wearing, but I never felt comfortable. After a while, I realised that copying them was making me unhappy. That's why my advice is to avoid copying other people, whether it's wearing the same clothes, having the same hobbies or doing the same jobs. You need to tell yourself, 'I don't want to be like anyone else, I just want to be me.'

[3]The problem with trying to 'be me' is that sometimes you don't know who you are. If you care too much about other people's opinions, you don't always realise what's important to you. That's why I'd suggest making a list of the things that mean a lot to you. I don't mean lists of possessions, like having a nice car or fashionable trainers, but behaviour, such as, 'I think it's important to be kind and honest.' By doing that, you will get to know yourself better and understand what behaviour you're most comfortable with.

[4]Another reason you might not feel confident is if you're afraid of not achieving your goals. I used to put off doing difficult tasks because I was worried about making mistakes. One day, I realised that if I didn't face my fear, I'd never become more confident. I'm not saying it's easy, but you need to set yourself goals and stick to them. Tell yourself, 'I'm not going to give up and it's going to make me more confident in future.'

[5]The wonderful thing about becoming more confident is that you'll feel better about yourself in different ways. You'll have healthier relationships, you'll know yourself better and you'll learn to do things that you thought were impossible. You'll still get nervous from time to time, but it won't stop you from achieving your goals. So just tell yourself, 'I'm ready to do this. I'm going to become more confident and take control of my life.'

7 Read the article again. Are the statements True (T) or False (F)?

1 The writer started giving presentations and workshops five years ago. T / F
2 The writer has always felt confident in social situations. T / F
3 The writer became worried about his appearance as an adult. T / F
4 The writer recommends not doing the same things as other people. T / F
5 The writer says it's important to think about other people's opinions. T / F
6 The writer suggests making a list of things you would like to own. T / F
7 The writer did not want to do things because he was worried about the results. T / F
8 The writer suggests not changing your plans about the future. T / F
9 The writer says that being more confident has different advantages. T / F
10 The writer thinks that being nervous will always stop you succeeding. T / F

Dear Liam,

We're pleased to announce that we're organising another work trip this year. It will be a great opportunity to spend time with your colleagues in a relaxed setting. We're planning to organise the trip on the first weekend of June. However, if you're unable to attend then, please let me know as soon as possible. We may be able to change the date if it's not convenient for everyone.

Regards,
