Cool jobs: The tour guide

By Stephanie Goodson

A

I'm in charge of organising tours in the Yosemite National Park. I work for a small hotel which offers activities and experiences for tourists. They include day trips, and, for more adventurous groups, camping trips. We don't use any vehicles for our tours unless our visitors can't walk very far. We make the tours interesting and I include talks about the nature and history of the place.

B

I used to work in a high school doing maintenance but I didn't want to do it forever. I'd always loved nature so I started looking for opportunities working outdoors. I found a great website which listed different job offers in national parks. When I saw a job doing hotel maintenance, I applied straightaway because I had a background in it. After a few seasons doing that, I had the chance to become a tour guide.

C

The main tourist season is from June to August but I normally start working in May and finish in late September. The salary isn't amazing, but accommodation and food is included so I usually manage to save a little, which helps me get through the winter. I get my own room in the hotel and, because I've been working there for several years, I always get the best one! It's got amazing views of the park, so I can't complain.

D

It's difficult to say what I enjoy most. I love the beauty of the park and there's so much to see there. There are giant Sequoia trees and amazing waterfalls, as well as some extraordinary wildlife. If I had to say what I like best, though, it'd have to be the people. The hotel owners are a lovely couple and they always have a great team working for them. As employers, they've always looked after me well.

E

I can't believe that anyone wouldn't enjoy my job. What's not to like about spending your days outside in some of the most beautiful scenery on the world? However, it's probably better for people who don't have many responsibilities because you might need to change your schedule at the last minute. But, if you're willing to do that and you love the outdoors, I'd recommend it.

5 Read the text again. Circle the correct answer (A or B).

0 What does the writer say about her tours in the first paragraph?

A She'd rather go on day trips than camping trips.	B She only uses a vehicle in certain situations.

1 What does the writer say about her job in a school?

A She got some useful experience for a job in the park.	B She found it when she was looking on a website.

2 What does the writer say in the third paragraph?

A She would like to earn more money.	B She started the job a few years ago.

3 How does the writer feel about her job?

A She's lucky to have good employers.	B She prefers the scenery to the people.

4 What does the writer think is important for her job?

A You need to be responsible and hard-working.	B You need to be independent and flexible.

The Cottingley Fairies

Elsie Wright grew up in a town called Cottingley in the north of England. In 1917, when she was sixteen, her little cousin, Frances Griffiths, came to stay with her. At the bottom of Elsie's garden, there was a pretty stream where the girls enjoyed playing. One day, they came home with wet clothes and their mothers were upset. The girls quickly made up an extraordinary story. They were in the stream because they'd seen fairies, or beautiful, tiny people with wings.

To show that they were telling the truth, Elsie offered to take a photograph and borrowed her father's camera. She took it down to the garden and a little while later, asked him to develop the photographs. Sure enough, they showed Frances with a group of fairies in the garden. Her father doubted the photographs were genuine, but her mother believed they were real. She ended up showing the photographs at a talk about fairies in Bradford and people were soon talking about them.

One man in particular, named Edward Gardner, thought the photos were proof that fairies existed and sent them to a photographic expert who confirmed that the images were real. Not long afterwards, they also attracted the attention of Arthur Conan Doyle, the author and creator of 'Sherlock Holmes'. He was planning to write an article about fairies and he wanted to use the pictures to illustrate it.

Despite the popularity of the photographs, Elsie's father still had some doubts. He looked for evidence of the fairies in Elsie's bedroom, but found nothing. Other people had doubts, too, but while some of them decided the photos were a hoax, they couldn't prove it. When Conan Doyle published them with his article, he thought they'd convince everyone that fairies and other imaginary creatures existed.

The photographs stayed in the news until 1921, but after that public interest decreased. The girls, however, continued to live a lie for the next sixty years. They only came clean in the 1980s in a magazine article where they explained how they'd copied pictures of fairies from a book. They cut them out and placed them in the garden scenes for their photographs. After taking the photographs, they destroyed the evidence by throwing it in the stream. The girls had never told the truth because they were afraid of what people would think.

7 Read the story again. Are the statements True (T) or False (F)?

0 Elsie and Frances both lived in Cottingley. _F_

1 Elsie used a camera which belonged to someone else. ___

2 Her father thought the photographs were real at first. ___

3 Arthur Conan Doyle hoped to include the photographs in an article about fairies. ___

4 Elsie's father discovered the truth in her bedroom. ___

5 The public were uninterested in the photographs before 1921. ___

6 The girls refused to tell the truth for the next sixty years. ___
