English lessons

We spoke to five language learners. They talked about their experience of learning English and gave us their advice for anyone struggling to learn English.

Roman
I'm studying online because I don't have time for regular classes. The advantage is that when I've got free time, I can log on and do some work. It's good for learning grammar, but there isn't much skills practice. If you're thinking about doing an online course, be careful not to put off doing exercises. I keep finding reasons not to do them, and it's easy to fall behind schedule. I should have done classes in a school because I need a teacher looking over my shoulder, encouraging me to work.

Sophia
I've been studying in a language school for about five years now. I used to have one lesson a week, but now I do them twice a week and I'm making much better progress. What I like most is that the teacher breaks down the grammar so it's easier to understand. Having said that, I'd recommend paying attention to vocabulary as well. Everyone thinks grammar is the most important thing, but if you don't know much vocabulary, it's difficult to express yourself properly.

Mohammed
I'm staying with an Irish family for a month to improve my English. I could have done classes as well, but I chose not to. I have to say, the experience has deepened my interest in Ireland and its culture. If you're planning to learn English abroad, you should make the most of the opportunity to get to know the people. I've learnt much more than if I'd just gone to classes. In fact, if I'd known it would be this useful, I'd have stayed here longer.

Elsa
I'm doing a degree in English because it's been a lifelong passion. As a child, I used to love British rock bands, and they inspired me to learn English. What I'm studying now is pretty advanced and sometimes it's tough. What I would say to other students is don't be afraid to ask your classmates for help. Recently, I've started getting together with some of mine and we think through our problems together. If I'd done that in the first year, I might not have been so stressed at exam time.

Luca
I never got good English grades at school. I should have worked harder, though, because my boss recently said I had to improve my English. I told her I felt uncomfortable speaking it and that I hated making mistakes in front of other people. That's why she agreed to pay for one-to-one classes. I've got such a patient teacher, who's taught me to lose my fear of making mistakes. My advice to other learners is to stop worrying about getting things wrong. If you can do that, everything else becomes easier.

4 Read the article again. Choose the correct answer (A, B, C or D).

1 Roman
A doesn't have enough time to study English.
B doesn't think English classes help him at work.
C doesn't think it's a good idea to delay studying.
D doesn't like having a teacher watching him.

2 Sophia
A has recently started taking English lessons.
B has recently been getting better at learning English.
C has never liked learning English vocabulary.
D has always found it difficult to express herself in English.

3 Mohammed
A thinks he should have spent more time in Ireland.
B thinks he should have attended English classes.
C thinks more people should have the chance to study abroad.
D thinks there should be more choice of places to study abroad.

4 Elsa
A finds it difficult to ask other people for help with English.
B wants to inspire other young people to learn English.
C thinks that the English she is studying is too difficult.
D suggests working with other students to solve issues.

5 Luca
A worked harder at English when he was at school.
B has been asked to become better at English.
C would rather have one-to-one English classes.
D is afraid of making mistakes in his English lessons.
