Read two flat reviews. Then answer questions 74–76.

B. Thomas (2 days ago)
We have been living in the Essex Flats for about six months now. The biggest problem we have are the floors, as you can hear your neighbour's every step. You will not just hear every step. You can feel it, too! At first we thought they just moved in and the noise would stop once they settle in, but it is never-ending. We finally had to ask our upstairs neighbour to try to be quieter, but she said that she can hear her upstairs neighbour as well. That is when we realised it must be the flooring. I can't work from home, and we can't even sleep because of sudden noises in the middle of the night. Our entire flat shakes. I have lived in various flats throughout the London area, and I have never experienced such constant disruption. Only consider living here if you will be living on the top floor. Otherwise, it's a nice spacious flat in a convenient location near the town centre.

J. Miller (one month ago)
Although the bedrooms and living area are quite big, the kitchen is rather small. It's difficult to move around when there's more than one person in the room. My roommate and I enjoy cooking together, so this is a problem for us. There's some issue with the car park, and people who park on the lower level have a white substance falling on their cars. The windows don't quite close completely, so we feel air coming through the cracks. This doesn't help with our air conditioning and central heating bills. We hear our upstairs neighbours constantly. As if that weren't enough, we hear our downstairs neighbours as well. I'm currently enjoying the musical tastes of the residents below us. Tonight's selection is Miles Davis's classic "So What." Needless to say, we are not happy.

74 What is a common problem at the Essex Flats?

a The size
b The floors
c The location
d The neighbours

75 Why does J. Miller mention windows?

a To illustrate a problem
b To describe a special feature c To explain how to keep warm d To talk about flat design

76 Which statement is most likely true based on the reviews?

a B. Thomas doesn't mind the parking issues.
b B. Thomas enjoys the flat's location.
c J. Smith enjoys spending time in her kitchen.
d J. Smith has a more positive opinion of the flat.

Read an article about Tadao Ando. Then answer questions 77–80.

Tadao Ando

Tadao Ando is a well-known Japanese architect whose style is marked by a clean minimal look. His work can often be recognised by a sense of simplicity and focuses on inner feeling rather than outward appearance. Having been exposed to the religious culture of Buddhism in Japan, Ando became aware of relating architecture to spirituality and nature. In order to practice the idea of simplicity, Ando's architecture is mostly constructed with concrete and just a few other materials such as glass and steel.

A remarkable fact about Ando is that he is a self-taught architect. He was first inspired by the work of architect Frank Lloyd Wright when he saw the Imperial Hotel on a trip to Tokyo in high school. After high school, Ando worked for a brief period as a professional boxer. He eventually decided to leave his boxing career to pursue architecture by taking evening classes to learn drawing and interior design. He visited buildings designed by renowned architects around the world before returning to Osaka in 1968 to establish his own design studio. Despite his self-taught educational background, Ando went on to receive the Pritzker Prize in 1995, widely recognised as architecture's highest award. He has won other top awards in architecture, including the Praemium Imperiale, the Gold Medal of the Royal Institute of British Architects, and the Gold Medal of the American Institute of Architects.

Ando has designed everything from homes to churches to museums. Some of his best-known works include the Church of Light in Osaka, the Water Temple in Awaji Island, the Hill of Buddha Temple in Sapporo, and the Punta Della Dogana Museum in Venice. No matter what kind of building he is designing, Ando uses the same approach. To him, each space is a residence that houses a heart and a spirit. His only job is to make that sentiment visible, which has always been his guiding philosophy.

77 What is a distinguishing feature of Ando's work?

a Complex design
b Physical beauty
c Use of concrete
d Relation to Japan

78 What is significant about the fact that Ando received the Pritzker Prize?

a It is the highest award in architecture.
b It is given to only a few architects.
c Ando has had no formal education in architecture.
d Ando doesn't believe there should be prizes in architecture.
