UNIT TESTS

Unit 1

Track 2

My favourite day / of the week / is Friday. / I often go out / in the evening.

Track 3

Interviewer: Today, I'm talking to young people about their blogs. Firstly, Simon Davies. Tell us about your blog, Simon.

Simon: Hi. Well, I love holidays and travelling so I have lots of photos of me – selfies – and I write about where they are and why they are special to me. I love getting comments from people – friends and others. Some people aren't always kind about my photos but I can learn from them so I don't mind. I add something every Saturday but I don't write on schooldays.

Interviewer: Thank you. Now, you're...

Melanie: Melanie Evans. I spend about fifteen minutes a day on my blog. It's the last thing I do before I go to bed. It's a private blog which means that only my friends can read it. I've got twenty friends who read it so I can write about anything. I don't worry that other people can see it. It helps me to relax in the evening.

Interviewer: Great, now Nick Lewis, what's your blog about?

Nick: Well, I've got two! I write about stories in the news on one. I don't do that often – just when I read or hear something interesting. The other blog is about computer games. When I buy a new game, I write about it. I say what I like and what I don't like. People often comment and say they really like the blog. I guess some people don't like it but they don't comment!

Interviewer: Great, thanks to everybody and I hope I can talk to more people later.

Track 4

What is / your mum's speciality? / She prepares / delicious pancakes / with strawberries.

Track 5

Lucy: I'm hungry, Damian. Do you want to go out?

Damian: No, I haven't got any money. Let's cook.

Lucy: OK, how about Chinese food?

Damian: Lucy! You don't listen. I haven't got any money for a takeaway. Anyway, Chinese food is unhealthy.

Lucy: I mean, cook something Chinese. It's quick and easy and it's healthy to cook at home.

Damian: Oh, OK. That sounds good. Let's look on the Internet to find some ideas. We can't cook without a recipe.

Lucy: I can. I can cook a great Chinese chicken fried rice. Where's the food... here we are. Chicken, onions, garlic, a red pepper, rice, peas, a tin of bamboo shoots and some Chinese spices and sauces. Right. I can cut the meat and you can chop the vegetables and open the bamboo shoots.

Damian: OK. And I can put some music on...

Lucy: Right, we're ready. You can be my student! First, put some oil in the frying pan. That's right and now add the chicken and the vegetables. Great. Add the sauce and spices and mix it all together. Hey, you're good! I think it's ready. Let's eat!

Damian: Err...Lucy, what about the rice?

Lucy: Oh no! Well, we can boil some water and wait twenty minutes or we can eat it without rice. I'm hungry. I don't want to wait.

Damian: I've got an idea. We've got flour, milk and an egg. I can make some pancakes in five minutes.

Lucy: Chinese pancakes? Err… no thanks. There's some bread here. You have the pancakes.

Damian: OK, but don't start eating before me!

Unit 3

Track 6

I am an engineer. / I build and repair / lots of different things. / The job is well-paid.

Track 7

ONE

John: I'm working for my dad this summer. He sells furniture and I go to people's houses with the driver and the chairs, tables and other things and I help to carry it inside. It's hard work and, sometimes, we don't finish work until 9 or 10 p.m. Dad says it's good for me! I can learn about the business! I want to work in the office with him but he's got a secretary who does everything there. She doesn't like me and I don't like her but I like the man I work with. He's funny. I don't earn a lot but I've got some money and I hope I can have a holiday before school starts again in September.

TWO

Cheryl: I'm a student. I want to work in the travel business when I finish university. That's why I'm working as a tour guide this summer. It's good experience. I show groups of tourists around my town. I live in Stratford-upon-Avon, Shakespeare's home town, so there are a lot of tourists here. I love my work. It's always interesting and the people are friendly and happy to be here. I don't earn any money but the tourists usually give me something. I finish work at five o'clock but, sometimes, the customers ask me to show them a nice pub or restaurant after the tour. It isn't work, it's fun but I often get home late and I am tired the next day.

THREE

Emily: I'm working in a café. It's hard work and quite boring but it's well-paid. I work as a waitress but the kitchen workers sometimes don't come to work. On those days we also wash up. It's very difficult. The customers are usually friendly and I like my colleagues. The only person I don't like is the manager. She is never happy with us and, when we do two people's jobs, she doesn't give us any extra money. She just tells us to hurry up and to smile at the customers. I try but it isn't always possible. Of course, she doesn't do anything to help us. She just stands there, watching us.

Unit 4

Track 8

I am quite well-built. / I usually wear / comfortable clothes / and trendy trainers.

Track 9

ONE

It's funny. I don't really care about my appearance. I haven't got many clothes although I try to follow the latest fashions when I can. When I go out, I spend a lot of time looking at other people and thinking 'Oh no! I don't like that.' Or 'Oh wow! I want a dress like that!' I usually wear the same kind of clothes, a shirt and skirt, all the time – to school, to parties and on dates. I feel comfortable in them. I just wear different colours depending on my mood; bright colours when I'm happy, black when I'm upset. It's strange but a lot of people like my clothes and they often want to know where I buy them from.

TWO

I love fashion. I spend hours trying to look like my favourite models and actors. I don't know why no one ever asks me where I buy my clothes! Maybe because my friends usually look even better than I do. The most important thing, for me, is to wear the right clothes for the right event. Some people wear smart clothes to a rock concert or festival, which is fine, they can do what they like – but I can't do that. I wear jeans and T-shirts to rock concerts, dresses to restaurants or the theatre and shorts to the beach. I like looking good but I don't want to stand out from the crowd too much.

THREE

I'm afraid I'm not an expert on clothes or hairstyles. I don't know what this year's colours are. I don't care. I just wear clothes that are comfortable. But now, I've got a girlfriend! She always looks great and I'm not sure she really likes my appearance! She doesn't say anything but I can see it in her eyes! So now, before I go out, I ask my sister and her friends about the right things to wear and what to do with my hair. They're two years older than me and they help me a lot.

FOUR

I get quite annoyed about my colleagues. They all follow the latest fashion. I follow alternative fashions. I don't want to look better than other people. I just want to be happy with my appearance. The problem is that, every time we go out, someone says something not very nice about my appearance. I don't know why they don't like it. I think I have the right to make my own choices and to be an individual and I can't understand other people's intolerance but I guess they just want everyone to look the same as them.

Unit 5

Track 10

My worst subject is Maths. / I often have to / retake tests / but I am improving my skills.

Track 11

Melissa: Hi, Simon. Where were you earlier?

Simon: Hi, Melissa. I was at a school trip meeting.

Melissa: Wow! Are you a student representative? That's new. You weren't interested in the school at all last year.

Simon: I know but I'm glad. It's really interesting. You should come.

Melissa: I can't this year. I go to three extra classes after school. I spend all my time studying. I'm surprised you have time with all your sports.

Simon: It's only one sport now. I play basketball twice a week but that's all. What about you?

Melissa: Me! Play sport? No way! Anyway, tell me about the school trip. Where are we going?

Simon: Well, I don't know yet. We couldn't agree. The teachers want to go somewhere educational. Their idea was Stratford-upon-Avon and a trip to see Hamlet at the Shakespeare theatre. Fiona was very happy with that idea but the rest of us weren't. We want to go walking somewhere. There are some beautiful national parks near here.

Melissa: What if it rains?

Simon: It doesn't matter! Rain doesn't hurt you! We can wear coats.

Melissa: Hmm. Well, I don't usually agree with Fiona but I think she's right this time. Stratford is great. It's close to Warwick, which is a beautiful town with an amazing castle and it's a good place to walk too. You can walk along the River Avon and there are parks and forests not far away.

Simon: Great ideas. You should come to the next meeting and tell everyone your ideas.

Melissa: Well, let me think about it. When is the next meeting?

Simon: On Tuesday, after school. Have you got any extra lessons that day?

Melissa: No, but we always get a lot of homework on Tuesdays. I don't know. Ask me again on Monday.

Simon: OK, great.

Unit 6

Track 12

He is into cycling. / His sister / enjoys kite surfing / and bungee jumping. / What sports / are you interested in?

Track 13

Jason: So, Helen, are you ready for the fun run on Saturday?

Helen: I hope so, Jason. I usually do some running before school but the weather is really bad at the moment so I prefer to stay in bed.

Jason: How far do you run?

Helen: I'm not sure. I run for about an hour but not very fast. I probably run about eight kilometres. How about you?

Jason: I run ten kilometres every day but after school.

Helen: I'd like to but my parents say I must do my homework first and, by the time I finish, it's dark. Then they say I can't go out because it's dangerous. But I don't get up early at the weekend. I run after breakfast.

Jason: That's great. I work all day Saturday and Sunday so the only running I do is to and from the restaurant!

Helen: I'd hate to work at the weekend. We go to visit my aunt quite often. She lives in a small village and I love going there. I can run or walk or cycle. I'd love to live somewhere like that.

Jason: Really? I love living in a big city. I like shopping and going out with my friends to the cinema or to concerts. And, of course, there are things like the fun run here.

Helen: That's true. Was there a fun run last year?

Jason: Yes, there was. I didn't run in it but I watched it. It was great fun. That's why I started running. It looked cool.

Helen: I started a few years earlier but I don't remember the fun run at all. Maybe I was at my aunt's house. None of my friends like running so no one talked about it or wanted to watch it. Who did you go with?

Jason: Gareth and Paul. My friends from the athletics club. You can run with us on Saturday if you like.

© Pearson 2020 PHOTOCOPIABLE Focus 1 SECOND EDITION (A2/A2+)

Helen: OK, great. I hope I'm not too slow. Oh no, break time is over. I've got Physics now.

Jason: Never mind. It's almost the end of the week. See you later.

Helen: Bye.

Unit 7

Track 14

Her children went on holiday / by coach. / They stayed / at a youth hostel / in the mountains.

Track 15

ONE

Andy: Hi, Clara. Have you booked the tour yet?

Clara: Hi, Andy. No, I haven't. There's some more information that I need to tell you. We've got three choices. A bus tour with forty or fifty other people. You see all the sights but with a big group so it's difficult to get nice photos and there are always queues for toilets and in restaurants.

Andy: That doesn't sound great.

Clara: You can do the same tour on a minibus with fifteen people on it. It leaves and returns at the same time as the bus tour but goes to the sights in a different order so that you aren't there with the coach parties. So, you eat in the same restaurants but they are quieter.

Andy: OK, let's do that.

Clara: Wait a minute. The third option is a private tour. On that, you can decide where to go and how long to stop at each place. It's expensive but I like the idea. If a place is boring, we can just leave.

Andy: So, how much are the tours?

Clara: The bus tour is £10 each. On a minibus, we pay £25 each and the car costs £140 altogether.

Andy: £70 each. No way!

Clara: Well, you can get four people in a car so we can find two other people and pay £35 each.

Andy: But they may not like the same places as us.

Clara: That's true. OK. So, what do you think? The mini-bus or the bus?

TWO

Alec: Hey, Sara, have you ever been on a camping holiday?

Sara: Yes, I have. My family and I go camping every year. Last year we went to Wales. It was my first time there. It was great.

Alec: What about the weather? I mean, what do you do when it rains?

Sara: Well, it doesn't matter. The tent is dry and there's room inside to read or play games. We always take lots of things to do.

Alec: And is it comfortable? I mean, to sleep?

Sara: Yes, it is. The only problem is the light. In the summer, the sun comes up at about five o'clock and then it's difficult to sleep.

Alec: Five o'clock! That sounds terrible!

Sara: Not really. I just go to bed early. If you want to sleep until late in the morning, it's best to find a campsite in a forest. The trees keep out the sunlight.

Alec: Good idea. What about food? Do you cook your own?

Sara: Sometimes. My parents have got a small gas cooker. Sometimes we have takeaways or eat out. So, why all the questions? Where are you thinking of going?

Alec: Some friends are going camping in France and they've asked me to go with them.

Sara: Do it. It's fantastic!

THREE

Girl: Excuse me, is this the train to London?

Man: I hope so. That's where I'm going.

Girl: Oh great.

Man: Can I help you with your backpack?

Girl: Thanks.

Man: It's heavy. Where have you been?

Girl: I've just got back from Madeira.

Man: Madeira? Where's that?

Girl: It's in the Atlantic Ocean. It's a Portuguese island but it's closer to Africa than Portugal. It's beautiful and the weather was fantastic.

Man: Lucky you. I've been on a business trip to Chicago.

Girl: Wow. I'd love to go to the United States. Did you enjoy it?

Man: Well, I arrived on Wednesday after an all-night flight, I went straight to a meeting,

© Pearson 2020 PHOTOCOPIABLE Focus 1 SECOND EDITION (A2/A2+)

had a meal in my hotel, slept and caught a flight back the next morning. I didn't see anything. I hate business trips. Oh, look out. Here's the ticket inspector. I hope this is the right train.

Unit 8

Track 16

Scientists think that / in a hundred years / there will be eleven billion / humans on Earth.

Track 17

ONE

I live in a small village but there is a beautiful forest a few hundred metres away. Many rare birds come to spend the colder months here and I love to watch them feed their young in the spring. When the skies are clear you can watch them flying up above. They are looking for mice and snakes to catch. Unfortunately, the number of birds in the forest is falling so I hope scientists will do something to protect all the wildlife living here.

TWO

I travelled around Asia a few years ago and the place that left the biggest impression on me was Nepal. The scenery there is breathtaking, especially the mountains which are the highest in the world. The people who live there have adapted to live In these conditions, but I actually felt quite sick from being so high above sea level. I hope global warming doesn't change the area too much, but every year there is less snow falling and it melts faster. I'm quite worried about what will happen in the future.

THREE

I spent last summer in Northern Spain. It was great because I lived a five-minute walk from the sea where I saw some amazing wildlife. Not many people know that there are dolphins and whales swimming there. I went to Spain to escape from a stressful job and luckily I found a new passion. I now work for a charity which fights against water pollution. We work to keep lakes, rivers and seas clean from toxic waste and to protect all the wildlife living there. I absolutely love my new life.

FOUR

I've always wanted to go to Australia. There are so many wonderful creatures there. Of course I'd be scared of all the poisonous snakes and spiders but as long as you are careful, there is no need to be afraid. I've finally saved up enough money and I'm going to fly to Sydney in two weeks. I think the temperature will be difficult for me, I don't like too much heat but there is wetter weather forecast so I think I'll survive. I can't wait to see all the amazing things I've read about in books. It's going to be the trip of a lifetime.

FIVE

I'm trying to do my part to stop climate change so I try not to travel by plane but it's very difficult and I still fly a few times a year. I live in Norway, where it is very cold, but in the last few years I've noticed the weather getting warmer. Last winter we even saw polar bears close to our village. Usually they stay far away but they came looking for food. I'm really scared it will happen again but luckily there are people trained to scare them away and keep us, and the bears, safe.

END-OF-YEAR TEST

Track 18

Carole: Hi, Josh. Are you OK?

Josh: Hi Carole. No. I've just finished work and I'm exhausted.

Carole: Don't worry. It's Sunday tomorrow.

Josh: Yes, but I work on Saturdays and Sundays. At least the restaurant is quieter on Sundays. On Saturdays it's impossible. Sometimes I think I should stop working there.

Carole: Why don't you?

Josh: I need the money! I don't earn much but it's better than nothing.

Carole: Do you work alone?

Josh: No, there are two other waiters there but we have about ten tables each to look after and it isn't easy.

Carole: Oh well, I guess you must get quite a bit of money from the customers.

Josh: Well, one or two people leave money but most don't.

© Pearson 2020 PHOTOCOPIABLE Focus 1 SECOND EDITION (A2/A2+)

Carole: Maybe it's you! Do you smile? Do the other two waiters get more than you?

Josh: No, they don't. It's because there is a ten per cent service charge so people think we get that. Of course we don't.

Carole: That's terrible. Can the restaurant do that?

Josh: I don't know. I should find out really. I'll look on the Internet later. Or, I could ask the manager tomorrow.

Carole: What's he like?

Josh: He's OK. He works harder than any of us. At least we get breaks. He never stops. He takes over from us when we have a break and then does the same for the kitchen staff.

Carole: Wow. He sounds like a good boss.

Josh: Yes, we all like him. Well, the chefs don't. They're rude to him but he doesn't say anything because they are really good at their jobs. They're rude to all of us. The only people they aren't rude to are the customers but that's only because they never meet them!

Track 19

ONE

Neil: Come on Stephen, move.

Stephen: I'm trying. It isn't easy.

Neil: Look out, the ball's coming. Stephen, the ball! Hey. That was a good catch. Do you play for your school cricket team?

Stephen: No. I've never played cricket but I can catch a ball. Hey, this ball will be a nice souvenir of our day here.

Neil: You can't keep it. You have to give it back to them. They need it to continue the match. Ah. Here are our seats. At last. Now we can sit down and enjoy the game.

Stephen: Have you got some water? I'm thirsty after running from the bus stop.

TWO

As you all know, last week, the local council decided to cut down hundreds of trees in the forest to build houses. This area of natural beauty will disappear if we don't do anything. Next week, we are going to have a meeting with council members but, if they don't agree to stop the building plans, we will protest starting on the 23rd of this month. It's the 10th today so that's in just under two weeks' time, one week after our meeting. We will make sure the whole country knows what is happening here!

THREE

Hi. Welcome to my vlog. It's Saturday night and here I am talking to a camera on my computer. All my friends are at a party, having an exciting time and I'm at home with nothing to do. I've got a temperature. I feel fine but my parents say I can't go out because they don't want me to be ill and miss school next week. I think going to a party and missing school sounds fine but I have to do what they say.

FOUR

Lucy: Hi Tom. Do you want to walk with me as far as the Maths room on your way to Physics?

Tom: I'll walk with you but I haven't got Physics.

Lucy: Yes you have. You always have Physics last lesson on a Tuesday.

Tom: Not today. Our teacher is ill and we can go home.

Lucy: Really?

Tom: Yes, there are about eight teachers off today because of flu. We're all over eighteen so we can go home. Younger students have to stay at school. Enjoy your Maths lesson!

FIVE

Hi Jake. It's Simon. I'm sorry I haven't phoned and I didn't come to your party. I've been ill in bed. The doctor gave me some medicine but it didn't do any good. I've had blood tests and I've seen three doctors and no one knows what's wrong. So they've just told me I have to go to hospital for a few days so they can do some more tests. If you have some free time, it'd be nice to have a visitor and I guess I should find out what school work I've missed. Call me.

SIX

Cathy: Hi Jason. Are you waiting for Heather?

Jason: No. Heather can't come out tonight. I'm with Lee. Well, he was here. He's waiting for his girlfriend, Anna. She's late and she isn't answering her phone so Lee's gone to look in her favourite shops! That's where he usually finds her! How about you? What are you doing?

© Pearson 2020 PHOTOCOPIABLE Focus 1 SECOND EDITION (A2/A2+)

Cathy: I'm waiting for my mum and dad. They've gone shopping for shoes. Dad always takes ages to decide what to buy. Oh, here they come now. See you later. Have a good evening.
